The third game of the prep school championship series will be played this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Ford Park. The contestants are John Marshall High School and McGuire's University School. Both teams have been playing big league ball, and an interesting contest is expected.

John Marshall has a long string of wins and a expected to continue its winning streak. In the first championship game they defeated Richmond Academy. The boys have been showing well in batting and fielding, and are expected to put up a good exhibition. McGuire's is coached by Coach Woodson of Millington High School at Baldwin. Both these twirlers have won several games.

The two schools are rivals in athletic and the third game is regarded as quite an event by the partisans of both teams.

WALTER JOHNSON

CHRISTY MATHEWSON

Westmoreland Candy Co.
Richmond, Va.

Ashland, Va., April 10.—To-morrow afternoon the Yellow Jackets baseball team will have Richmond College as their opponents on the local diamond. This will not be a championship game, but will be a very interesting game because of the rivalry between these institutions.

The Yellow Jackets have played eight games so far this season and have come out with the big end in five of the eight. They have beaten the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, the Virginia Agricultural College, Roanoke College, Fredericksburg College and the Union Theological Seminary.

With the first championship game only a little more than a week off, to-morrow's game will give the followers loped on the strength of these two teams.

The varsity squad has about been determined on by Coach Reiss, and all the men have been given a try-out. Coach Reiss has shifted a number of men who played on last year's nine and decided that they are better suited for, which makes for a more evenly balanced team.

The most important changes are playing Bane at first base instead of left field, and Walker in left field instead of second base. Haslett, a freshman, who started out as the backup position, has been put in centre field, because Gayle and T. H. Brown were holding down the backup position, and Haslett was needed on account of his hitting ability.

The pitchers are in good form and will be high on the list of favorites against them in the eight games so far. Ferguson, who twirled against Virginia last Monday, allowed them only six scattered hits, and if it had not been for the loose fielding of his teammates there would have been a shut out. He is a good pitcher, throwing good, steady ball, and the team has a great deal of confidence in him.

The probable line-up for to-morrow's game is: Anderson, third base; Tatem, right field; Walker, left field; Haslett, centre field; Gayle, second base; Bane, first base; Midvette, shortstop; Gayle or T. H. Brown, catcher; C. K. Brown or Ferguson, pitcher.

John Powell at His Best.
 Hearing modest laurels gained in England and on the Continent, John Powell returned yesterday to the city of his birth and offered again in himself a new and convincing proof of the truth of the ancient prophecy concerning the prophet and his own country. For he played in the Academy of Music last night to an audience that heered and cheered and roared and listened to his message of music in tense silence, and greeted it with storms of acclamation.

Since he came from a prodigy into a matured artist of great attainments, although he has played here in public infrequently, he has been heard by practically all the followers of music in this city. He has been heard to dwell upon the performance of last night at any length. It must be said, however, that even after the remarkable performance he received upon his appearance at the May Festival season, when the whole audience literally rose at him, he reached no such heights. In my opinion, as he attained his best.

Perhaps another year, wider experience, further study, more of life in a more artistic world, all or any of those things, he has been so matured in the cause, the result, I think, is inevitable. Wonderful technician he has been for many years, young as he is, nor has he ever lacked that indefinable quality, which, for want of a better word, we call "temperament," but last night he played, at times, as one inspired by the spirit of music itself, not merely exalted by the interpretation of music's disciples, masters though they were.

Throughout the brief program Powell was in the mood to play. His pedaling, his trills, runs, octave work and all the other things that make up the technique of equipment that is his were, as always, effectively and admirably employed, while time and again he proved himself absolute master of the sustained and the rapid, by the way, a rarely beautiful piano.

The Beethoven "Sonata in A-major, Op. 2, No. 2," with which he began the recital, is a piece of supreme beauty, notably the Largo movement, which, as we have stated, rarely is of some martial German hymn, forms so memorable a part of the composition. His own "Variation for Piano and Organ" was written by Frederick F. Haas, was doubly interesting, because of its brilliant performance and because of the work itself. The simple theme of his honored teacher, which he played so well, was his own, while Powell has treated it, not with the old-fashioned idea of mere elaborate ornamentation, but in a manner that abounds in tonal effects of the kind that are the mark of the modern pianist. "Sonata in B-minor," needs no comment—we have all heard Powell's

But in the almost impossible "Sonata in E-minor" of Liszt he rose to a point of tremendous, well-nigh overwhelming power, carrying the audience with him in torrential waves of Lisztian splendor, impelled by the force of his own genius.

It is not probable that those who heard Powell play Liszt last night will forget it.

Cash Register Movies.
Perfection in the art of moving pictures was to be seen last night at the Masonic Temple, when the National Cash Register Company displayed its series of kinemacolor productions. The films were highly educational, displaying not only the company's enormous business operations, but views of the city of Dayton that are of especial interest just now.

Manager H. G. Thyson, Jr., was in charge, admission being by tickets distributed at the time. The audience showed its pleasure, and will, it is expected, voice it sufficiently to ensure a demand to see the performance at the same place to-night.

The working of the departments of a model factory produced not the least interest of the pictures. In this work the National Cash Register Company is taking the lead in a system of publicity that will probably be generally followed within a short time. It is the successor of the "magic lantern" exhibits in vogue at about the time of the Jamestown Exposition.

FOWNES LEADER IN TRIAL ROUND

Pinehurst, N. C., April 16.—Henry C. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, was the medalist in to-day's qualification round of the annual mid-April golf tournament. He brought in a card of 74, six strokes under bogey. In second position, C. L. Becker, of Lubandale, Mass., led Robert Hunter, of Stamford, Conn., by one stroke, with a card of 89.

Others in the first division were W. A. Kinter, of Pittsburgh; N. S. Hurd, of Pittsburgh; E. W. Irwin, of Kent, Mich.; D. V. L. McGrew, of Pinehurst; and T. A. Kelly, of Southern Pines, N. C.

Rear-Admiral Dunlap, of the Chevy Chase Club, Washington, D. C., is a contestant in the third division. Match play continues through Saturday.

JUNIOR LEAGUE GETS AWAY GOOD

But National League Has Only Half Opening, With Two Games Postponed.

New York, April 10.—Under adverse weather conditions and with a corresponding effect on the attendance, the playing seasons of the National and American Leagues opened to-day, the first game being between the White Sox, honoring the pastime by his presence at the game in the national capital. Only one game of the American League was postponed—that of Chicago against Cleveland, which was postponed because the grounds of the latter League it was really only half an opening, as wet grounds necessitated the postponement of two contests—those of Pittsburgh at Cincinnati and St. Louis at Chicago.

In the National League, the lowly Boston Braves put it all over the champion New Yorks in an 8 to 0 game. Crandall and Tesreau were n. hard but Hub Pordus, despite the raw wind, showed a remarkable game for Boston, holding the Giant batsmen to two hits.

Brooklyn took a sweet revenge on Philadelphia for yesterday's whitewash by showing the Phillies no takers on the home grounds 11 to 3.

In the American League, Mack's ex-world's champions won over the champion Red Sox by a score of 16 to 9. The game was remarkable for the number of pitchers brought into action, each side trotting out three.

Frank Chance's New Yorks, as he insists on calling them, with the P. L. out of the game, were defeated by Griffith's fast-flying Senators 2 to 1. Both Johnson and McConnell went the entire route.

St. Louis took its game from Detroit, the veteran Mullin and his opponent, Weiland, pitching gilt-edged ball.
